At the Grand also, many improvements are being made, and Manager, Mulvey is expending a considerable sum of money for the comfort of his patrons. New carpets and hangings will be seen on the opening night, which will be on Monday, the 18th. In timely anticipation of the cold weather, a number of heaters will be placed in the rear of the auditorium, to prevent a repetition of last year's complaints. the rear of the auditorium, to prevent a repetition of last year's complaints. The appearance of the house will be improved by a row of loges in front of the posts, making a dividing line. In short, Mr. Mulvey is making every effort to have his theatre present a metropolitan appearance.

"A Yenuine Yentleman" with Ben Hendricks, will be the opening bill on the 18th, and from that time until the middle of April, the bookings are solid. These will include some of the best attractions on the road, and there is every indication of the most propersous season that the Grand has ever known.

"A Yenuine Yentleman" at the Grand.

All who remember Ben Hendricks' portrayal of "Yon Yonson" last winter, will look forward to his return on Monday, Sept. 18, to the Grand, in his new Swedish dialest comedy, entitled, "A Yenuine Yentleman." Mr. Hendricks gathered the material for this play while on a visit to Sweden a couple of years ago.

The story begins on board an ocean liner in the harbor of Southampton, and it is during the voyage to this country that most of the characters are introduced to the audience. Sven Hanson is a young Swede who has been educated as a mining expert and is on his way to America to accept a situation with one of the great mining corporations in the Cocur d'Alene district in Idaho. His adventures while en route and during the excitement attendant upon the great miners' strike of three years ago form the basis of the story. There is a strong love interest and a petes of humorous situations. Mr. Hendricks' portrayal of the Swede is tuned in a heroic key and it is a higher order of somedy than was seen in his previous efforts. The play offers many opportunities for scenic display which Manager Arthur C. Aiston has taken advantage of. A beautiful view of the previous chorts. The play olders many opportunities for seenic display which Manager Arthur C. Aiston has taken advantage of. A beautiful view of the Isle of Wight with the harbor of Southampton in the foreground is shown. Another pretty picture is New York harbor near Ellis island. "The Bachelor's Honeymoon" at the Salt Lake theatre on Thursday night marked wha' Manager Pyper calls the preliminary opening for the season. An opening is an opening, to be sure, but things are not yet quite in shape for the real occasion at the Theatre, and then besides there will be quite a gap between now and the next engagement.

During this time, Mr. Pyper expects to have everything in order, including the sidewaik, which has been inconvenient and unsightly for so long.

The usual summer time improvements have not been omitted at the Theatre, although they have been made in places which are out of sight to the audience. Especial attention has been placed in case of accident. Decided improvements have been made in the mysterious region, known as "back of the stage," sail for the comfort and

The usual summer time improvements have not been omitted at the Theatre, although they have been made in places which are out of sight to the audience. Especial attention has been paid to improvements for the prevention of fire, and chemical engines have been placed in case of accident. Decided improvements have been made in the mysterious region, known as 'back of the stage,' sill for the comfort and convenience of the actors. This will win much gratitude for Mr. Pyper, as traveling companies are but seidem controlled in the renovating of a theatre, and dressing rooms on the road usually do not contain "all the comforts of home."

"Hotel Topey Turvy," the next attraction at the Theatre, does not come until Oct. 2, and 3, so there is opportunity in the meanwhile to make the rendiness complete. Sidewalks will be laid, summer resorters will all have returned to their homes, and theatregoing weather will be in full force. So the auspictous occasion is yet to come. After "Hotel Topey Turvy," the next appropriate the full process of the force of the home company, "Madeleine; or The Magic Kiss," will be produced, Gerat interest is aiready manifested, in this occasion, and all who have heard it, say that it is one of the prettiest light operas in existence. The time was found to the produced in the road of an action o Edwin Arden, and entitled "Zorah." The play seems to be a mixture of urid sensationalism and heroic deeds such as go to make up any of our melodramas, but the race of the characters and the religious features of the play have served to give it an unusual interest. It is said to be a well written play, with some remarkably fine character sketches, and errs rather in having a super-abundance of good material. The leading male part is played by Mr. Arden, and the title role is in the hands of Miss Rebecca Warren, well known to Sait Lake audlences, who has received excellent notices for her has received excellent notices for her

An effort has been made to vary the attractions as much as possible, and to mix meloffama, opera, and farce, so that we may not have too much of one kind at a time. In this way the patrons of the Grand will receive a continual "assortment." The management takes great pride in the processia, which has been increased to nine pieces, and under the able leadership of Mr. Walter C. Coleman, Includes some of the best musicians in the state. she has monuments and quaint instoric nooks.
But what has she to match against the Yards?
With a hundred thousand grunting, gristly gullets daily ripped.
And three dozen thousand bullocks turned to appetizing cuts.
When the flesh, horns, hides and tallow have been packeted and shipped We could buy and sell all Boston with the profit from the guits!

They direct him to the kingdom of the strong.

In the biggest, livest city of the lot. Here we take him as a brother to our bosom in the clubs.

And we load him like a liner with the things he wants to drink:
Then we listen to his lecture on a lot of foreign dubs.

And we rush him to the Stockyards with their stimulating stink.

Kipling tried it, and La Gallienne, and Caine;
Zangwill groped among the hams and hocks and lards.
And they all agreed in language that was plain
They had never seen the equal of the Yards.
